Windows and Mac users can now use Web surfing at home or on-the-go through their smartphones and tablets with the newest Firefox browser release. Firefox 65, which was announced on Thursday, features an easier way to search. The browser also has a new, redesigned search bar. The update brings improved camera mode to the browser. While users have always been able to change the way images appear on a webpage, they had to first tap the camera icon in the top right corner of the screen. With the latest release, that change is automatic. Firefox 65 is expected to be released for Apple devices. Android users can expect to receive an update soon. The new release of Firefox offers streamlined navigation, updated privacy and security features, and enhanced features for mobile devices. If you're looking for a better way to search for things on the internet, then you can try Firefox for iOS and Android. iOS version of the browser is now a Universal app, so users can now easily browse the web on their iPhones and iPads. Also, the new update introduces the Find My Settings and Lock Screen feature. It has also been updated to work with the iPhone 11 and iPhone 11 Pro, as well as the new iPhone SE. Visiting other websites during a Web surfing session can be a tiresome and time-consuming task. Fortunately, Web browsers like Firefox have solved that problem for users over the years. However, browsing has never been as convenient as it is now, thanks to Mozilla Firefox version 65. Firefox 65, which has already been tested by users, presents a new and improved design for accessing the web while on-the-go.
