What's New in the BP Internet Optimizer?

BP Internet Optimizer for Windows 2000/XP/2003/Vista is a utility that is able to effectively enhance your Internet connection speed. You can boost your DSL connection, cable connection, dial-up, LAN, satellite, mobile phone network and WLAN connection. All that is needed from you is to simply select the current connection type, Internet speed and then click the ‘Optimize’ button. Once that is done, the application informs you of what it needs to change in order to improve your Internet connection speed. It shows you the new values for the Maximum Transmission Unit (MTU), Receive WINDOW (RWIN), Time To Live (TTL), PMTU Black Hole

Detect, PMTU Discovery, Selective Acknowledgement (SACK) and RFC 1323 options. While you go over the numbers, the application automatically makes the changes in the System Registry that give way to the new boost in Internet speed. For the changes to take effect, you need to reboot your computer. The entire process takes just a couple of seconds. In case you notice that the results aren't satisfactory you can restore the original system settings with a simple click. You do need to keep in mind that while these changes are applied to your system with the sole purpose of improving your Internet connection speed, not all are going to work well. For example, you can experience lag if you decide to max out the value for your MTU. In closing, BP Internet Optimizer is a tool to seriously take into consideration when you want to enhance the speed of your Internet connection. Internet Setup allows you to create your own e-mail accounts, with unlimited storage, using your existing ISP accounts. This makes it a wonderful utility for those who enjoy playing with computers, and those who want to get away from the mainstream e-mail service providers. Most recently I decided to upgrade my email setup to try the latest version, Internet Setup 3.2.2. A bit of searching on the web revealed quite a few helpful reviews on this, but most people with similar experience seemed to prefer the older versions. So I decided to upgrade and see how things go. I had no idea that Microsoft developed this utility. The application is basically an automation of the process of creating e-mail accounts. This is done through a wizard that allows you to create different types of accounts, like POP/IMAP, MySQL database, IMAP4 or even X400 and SMTP. You can choose different values to specify the delivery method for the mail accounts. You can also choose to send and receive messages via pop3, smtp, imap4, smtp, imap4 and x400 (ieb). You can create an unlimited number of e-mail accounts on a single machine. You can also select the folder you want the
