softwareQ: access an object in a container class from another function in a different class I need to access an object in a container class from another function in a different class, how do I do that? For example: in class1, I declare a class2 object, i.e, Class2 obj1; In class2 I have a function that loads data from a file. I want to be able to pass the object to the function. In class1 I can do the following:

void function1(Class2* obj) { obj->loadFromFile(); } But how do I do the same in class2? A: If class2 is only one of class1's children, you can do this:

```
class1.hpp: class class1 { class2 obj1; void function1(class2* obj);

---

} class2.hpp: class class2 { void loadFromFile(); } class1.cpp: class1::function1(class2* obj) { obj->loadFromFile(); } class2.cpp:
class2::loadFromFile() { ... }

An email tracker is a software that is used to keep track of e-mails that you receive throughout the day. By accessing a tracker you will be able to see if the e-mail you sent was delivered or not, if it was sent to the right person, etc. All of the information gathered will be stored in a database where you will be able to access it later by clicking on a button on the program. Pros: All of the information can be stored in a database, it is just that you have to go through the process of saving it yourself. You can use the program to set up a message with all of the information you want to send, you can view all of the data in one place, make it as simple or as complicated as you want it to be. The entire program is very user friendly and is a lot of fun to use.

Cons: Email tracker does not allow you to edit information that you have saved, it will automatically overwrite your data. If you need to change something that you have done, you are out of luck because the program will automatically save your data again. A free alternative to Email Tracker is [email protected], it is a email management software that is similar to Email Tracker. The difference is that [email protected] is free while Email Tracker is not, yet the program is similar in many aspects. One way that [email protected] is superior to Email Tracker is that it is easier to set up, it is also a lot more responsive and has a better interface. Compatible with all of the following operating

Email Tracker How to write a professional email subject line that opens the inbox and increases open rate. Video transcription Hi everybody and welcome to the Udemy video. We're going to be taking a look at how to write a professional email subject line that
opens the inbox and increases open rate. So what are the first things that you think about when you think of email? You think about that topic. You think about that
