I need count the total number of events. I tried this query: SELECT COUNT(*) FROM Events; But it gives the count of all the rows in the table. A: use COUNT DISTINCT SELECT COUNT(DISTINCT EventId) AS countEvents FROM Events Search form The Right to Rest Julian Morris, Researcher Julian Morris is a researcher at the University of Cambridge and a Leading Researcher at the University of Essex. He is also the author of the Royal Society book Mind on Fire: the Future of Artificial Intelligence. You will soon be able to decide whether a human goes to prison, whether their children are allowed to access the media and whether a particular type of robotic arm would be better at nursing a broken leg than a human being would. These are just a few of the results of the latest decision of the European Court of Justice (ECJ) on the law of the European Union. It has decided that a single member state cannot decide to throw away a person's right to a trial by jury or ban abortion in a city. The 'right to rest' is one of the most important but least recognized of our human rights. In its natural interpretation, the right to rest refers to a healthy, well-rested person. A great deal of research, however, is now exploring how this simple human right can apply to people in a wide range of circumstances – from the large numbers of people struggling to find sleep or catch up on sleep who spend time in adult daycare centres, to the aged and people with dementia who are being bathed and left to relax whilst their daily regime is attended to. We also have the hidden burden of perfectly good data that's not being put to good use. In the UK alone, there are a lot of what we call three-dimensional printers (3D printers), which make devices from metal and plastic. If I own a 3D printer, I can print out any device for any purpose; I just need to
