It is much more convenient and easy to simply log all of the activity with the name of the component that is doing it and the time stamp as well. With WintailMulti, you can quickly create a folder full of log files and any time when the application is launched, they will be instantly created in the corresponding folder. If you want to open these log files in a regular text editor, you can do so. If you want to export the log files to FTP or email, you can easily find out the FTP or mail address in the interface and launch the action immediately, skipping all the tedious and time consuming configuration steps that are usually associated with it.
