Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an apparatus for grinding the fine edge of a pallet, and more particularly to a grinding apparatus which is suitable for the finishing process of a pallet, and which can provide highly accurate finishing work in a short period of time by grinding the fine edge of the pallet automatically and continuously without stopping the grinding process. 2. Description of the Prior Art Generally, pallets used for a packaging machine are composed of wood materials such as reinforced fiber. However, sometimes the wood materials used for the pallets have poor workability, and/or the user forgets to manufacture the pallets within time. Such wooden pallets are not suitable for the packaging machine. In order to solve the above problems, a metal pallet has been developed. However, since the metal pallet is expensive, there is a problem in that the metal pallet is not used when the packaging machine is operated in an urgent manner. Therefore, attempts to develop a pallet having a fine edge, which can be used in both of the cases where the wooden pallet is used and
