Ideally, I would like to have a Newsfeed sorted by the date published, but this is not possible (is it?). Therefore, I have been considering the following approach: If I find a Newsfeed sorted by the date published, I make a new Post for every newsgroup, that contain the newsgroup name as the Post title. The Post date is set to the last post date of the newsgroup. In this way, I could automatically sort the Newsfeed. The problem is, I have no idea how to do this with the SEARCH syntax. I have tried the following (thinking it would work), but I can't get it to work: Example post: :postdate.newsgroup.posttitle .:posttitle. :postdate.newsgroup.posttitle The postdate is the latest post date of the newsgroup. I use this to find the posts that have been published in the newsgroup since the last time I checked. newsgroup.posttitle .:newsgroup.posttitle I use this to find the Newsfeed sorted by newsgroup. :posttitle. :postdate.newsgroup.posttitle This should be the post sorted by the Post title and date. That's basically it. This search does not show the post sorted by date. It does not show the newsgroup sorted by newsgroup. Can you tell me what I'm doing wrong? A: Here is the syntax of your search (I added $1 to the end so that it selects the posttitle for the posted newsfeed): {NEWSGROUP}$1:postdate.posttitle. .:posttitle. :{NEWSGROUP}$1:posttitle. :postdate.newsgroup.posttitle This worked perfectly for me. Forbes suggests the cost of paying the 2017 registration fee for the BMW i8 electric vehicle is the equivalent of owning an iPhone 6. You might have to pay that kind of price for the next generation of EVs, too. The vehicle you see above is BMW's i8. It's the German automaker's attempt to take on the Tesla Model X in terms of making a great-looking, luxury-level, high-performance electric vehicle. In the end, it ended up being cheaper than the Tesla, and it was a huge hit with critics when it was released. The i8 has a list price of $117,800, although the deal on it that you can find right now will probably be around $100,000. Still, that kind of deal usually comes with an obligatory high-pressure sales pitch. BMW isn't trying to "sell" you on the i8, it's just trying to get you to come and take a look at it. And the best part is that it has to give you a loaner so that you can experience the car first hand and give it an objective opinion. When it's all said and done, will you be looking at the i8 with the same kind of passion that you did the $100,000 Tesla? [Forbes] The purpose of this proposal is to request a two-year renewal of the five-year NICHHD programmatic award that was initially awarded in 2001. The primary objective of the original proposal was to determine the optimal age for starting oral vitamin D in toddlers with a history of failure-to-thrive and to examine the effect of this intervention on growth and bone mineralization. Secondary objectives were to assess whether a non-calcium supplement was sufficient for children that already consumed a daily dose of calcium, to assess the ability of sun exposure to provide adequate vitamin D stores in preschool children, and to conduct an efficacy trial of a supplement to increase vitamin D stores in a population with a high prevalence of vitamin D deficiency. The grant was renewed in 2006 to allow the research team to collect the final 2 years of data required to determine whether vitamin D supplements could safely and effectively increase vitamin D stores in 2-5 year old children and to develop the protocol for the study. 54b84cb42d
