In the first World War,Â . At the moment of the declaration of war,Â . The breakout of hostilities provides a historico-political context for the period between the two world wars, when France experienced a serious breakdown.1. In terms of his official role, he never took an active part in any military engagement. In France, a historical consensus emerged, based on official publications and the Franco- German Agreement of 1938, that Nazi German aggression was the primary cause of the Second World War. A 20-year programme of historiography, from 1945 to 1975, has investigated the political and military causes of the Second World War, attempting to explain the French political, economic and military choices.
