KeyMacro is a small application that automatically fills in email addresses in rich text documents, and saves them in a database. You can specify your own databases, and KeyMacro can add "invisible" fields to a database. The databases can be used to store contact data, email addresses, phone numbers, zip codes and other information. KeyMacro is a very small utility, which only requires about 15 MB of free space on your computer. You can easily save your email address database with KeyMacro, because the program keeps all the information in a database file in a safe location and stores the information in the file. When you want to change the information, you can update the database file, and use KeyMacro to quickly add the new information to a new email address database file. KeyMacro is written in C++ and Microsoft Windows compatible. Activation system: There is no activation system required. You can download KeyMacro and add it to the download list. Features: - Database format with fields: - Contact database: You can add names and addresses for contact information, like street address, e-mail address, phone number, fax, website address, etc. - Local database: You can use a database file with your own information, which can be used to store all the information you want to keep. - Password protection: You can add passwords to all or some of the fields in the database. - Keyboard shortcuts: You can configure your own keyboard shortcuts, e.g. you can have "New Database" as "Ctrl+N", and "Save As..." as "Ctrl+S".
