Launchx431diagunupdatedownloadfull129

So, any ideas how I can extract the "Launchpad - Take the tour - Read the guide - Â©Â . Â . Â . Â ." string? The situation is the same for launchx431diagunupdatedownloadfull129.scm and launchx431diagunupdatedownloadfull129diagunupdatedownloadfull129scm. Any ideas?
My scenario: I wanted to create a script or something, where a user can update to the latest version of Launchpad by clicking on "update" and then having this update script automatically close after downloading. But I am unable to download the string "Launchpad - Take the tour - Read the guide - Â©Â . Â . Â ." so I can use it in the code. A: To extract the text from the original data I used the following command: notepad +h "data.txt" | perl -plne 'while() { if (/launchx431diagunupdatedownloadfull129/) { print "$1 " } else { print } }' > new.txt It first reads the data.txt file into memory and then applies a perl one-liner to filter out all the lines in data.txt that contain "launchx431diagunupdatedownloadfull129" and "scm" (just in case the codes are not the same in all the data.txt). Then the original data.txt file is written to new.txt. 6 Visiting Canadians Lost In Thailand's Sunflower Beach by: Jamie Lendy, The Daily Mail, Feb 24, 2017 6 Visiting Canadians Lost In Thailand's Sunflower Beach 6th February 2017 The results of a Thai navy search operation said to have been launched in the Gulf of Thailand after Canadian tourists disappeared in the beach of Prachuap Khiri Khan province, have failed to turn up any bodies. The navy had been searching for the pair in the sea between Thailand and Malaysia since Saturday evening, when a helicopter spotted two air pockets in the sea surface that could have been the bodies of missing tourists, Maj Gen Sitthipon Sumethwasorn, the head of the navy, said in a press conference on Sunday. Search effort gets underway despite heavy sea conditions, heavy rain and high tide
