Question : I have used serial number 827F1 product key for AutoCAD LT for Mac 2014. I have used this product key in order to activate my pc. In other hand, I have used serial number 129F1 for AutoCAD Map 3D 2014 and AutoCAD MEP 2014. Can I use the serial number 827F1 or 129F1 to activate the software for Mac/Win? A: Yes, I have just tried using the license key that I use to get the version of AutoCAD LT for Mac 2014 on my home PC. It works. That is how I have installed it on my home PC. I assume that the same license key will work for the Mac and PC versions of AutoCAD LT. The license keys for the PC versions of AutoCAD LT and AutoCAD MEP were distributed as part of the AutoCAD LT for Mac 2014 installation, so I am not 100% sure that they will work for the Mac version. But, if you don't have a copy of AutoCAD LT for Mac 2014, then the licence key for that version will do. Q: Simple string split / conditionals I'm trying to build up a simple but highly used function. I think the function is rather complicated but I'll try to simplify my issue. I'm pulling data from an API using the data API package for PHP, and here's an example of a JSON object: { "meta": { "code": 0, "message": "success" }, "status": 1, "status_time": 1406705643600, "objects": [{ "name": "Asdfasfd", "summary": "Hey" }, { "name": "Asdfasfd", "summary": "Blah blah" }] } What I'm trying to do is get the name and summary of objects from the data API, where status = 1. So far I have a function that gets the JSON object from the data API: public function getData() { $args = [54b84cb42d
