This article will give you a few pointers on how to fix an Autoplay issue on an internet web browser. The free way is to go into the browser settings and change the settings to Ask you before starting to play media, and Allow autoplay to be controlled by the current website. There is a way to block a media player from Autoplay completely from the web browser. This is to take the JavaScript out of the web browser. This article will show you how to install the free version, which is called Easy Popup Blocker. If you have been reading my articles for a while, you will know that these are not sponsored posts. I have to pay for some of the things that I use. I would very much appreciate your support by clicking on the links, using the help and product recommendations at no cost to you. Browsers like Chrome, Firefox, or Internet Explorer have this option. It allows you to Stop autoplaying of this video and prevent it from starting the automatic playback of video. What you need to do is to click the Autoplay option and change the setting to Ask You for every audio or video file. You may need to be patient as it may take some time until you see your video or audio content. Find the Autoplay option on the browser at the top or bottom of the web page. There should be a list of sites that the browser will automatically autoplay a video on. You can tell if an item is playing or not by viewing the status bar at the bottom of the browser screen. It is recommended to select Ask You before a video is started. If you select No, then it will just start playing automatically. If you select No, then you will have to click the play button manually.
