Many of the senior Democrats in the US House of Representatives are arguing that Israel should be allowed to launch a military strike on Iran's nuclear facilities – even if it risks a nuclear arms race with the Islamic Republic. Their argument: the people of Iran are being threatened, and it is time for the United States to stand with them in self-defense. “We are seeing a very dangerous confrontation that is out of control,” said Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz (D-Fla.), the former chair of the Democratic National Committee, after Tuesday's Republican National Convention. “It is beyond Iran’s nuclear facilities, and the United States should be prepared for the possibility of a military strike on Iran by Israel.” Not surprisingly, the Democrats’ leading hawk, Rep. Lee H. Hamilton (D-Ind.), has long been advocating for such a military strike. And indeed, Hamilton has been urging the Obama administration to join Israel in “a third force strike to avoid war with Iran.” As for the Democrats’ other hawks – such as Rep. Steve Cohen (D-Tenn.) and Rep. Alcee L. Hastings (D-Fla.) – they have all called for Israel to be given the green light to attack Iran. In the end, this position is about much more than merely providing Israel with the means of attacking Iran. It is also about what happens if the Israeli strike, or any strike against Iran, fails. Those in favor of this self-defense argument say the US should be ready to defend itself if the Israelis decide to attack, even if the strike fails. “At some point, these negotiations are going to collapse, and there’s going to be a military conflict,” said Cohen, in a speech to the House Foreign Affairs Committee on July 27, 2012. “So, what happens if the Israelis are attacked? Do we stay out of the picture and hope that they’ll get the job done for us? That’s not our job.” “We have a right to defend ourselves
