A: Try to use the "Hide Sliders" option in the "Display" view. Q: A question related to the graph of $f(x)=\sqrt{3x^2+7}$ If the graph of $f(x)=\sqrt{3x^2+7}$ is shaded and the line $y=x$ is also shaded. Is it possible that the part of the graph which is shaded is the graph of a function $g(x)=\sqrt{3x^2+7-7}$? A: Notice that $$g(x)=\sqrt{3x^2+7-7}=\sqrt{3x^2}$$ 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method and system for filling a container with a product, and in particular to a unitary opening of a valve in a filter cartridge having a mechanism which applies a flexible membrane against a valve seat to close the valve. 2. Description of Related Art The cleaning of water supplies by filtering, such as by water softening, is well known. Water softeners include a base cabinet having an inlet for receiving water to be treated, an outlet coupled to a pipe extending to a tap, an upper end and a lower end. A water softening assembly has a shell which includes a cylindrical chamber inside which a number of ceramic water treating beads are arranged to contact the incoming water. The water softening assembly further includes a water-filled base and a top cover having inlet and outlet ports. The inlet port directs untreated water to the base and the outlet port directs treated water to the outlet pipe. A softening element contained within the chamber is a filtration device that acts as a trap for calcium and other ions in the incoming water. In the operation of the water softener, the porous ceramic beads are saturated with calcium and other ions by flowing untreated water through the chamber and into the ceramic beads. When the softening elements have been saturated and no longer capable of acting as a trap for calcium and other ions, they are replaced or regenerated by including a flow of
