Q: How to use CodeFirst to create a database? I am trying to create a simple ASP.NET Web API application using Visual Studio 2017 and .NET Core 3.0. The goal is to create a MSSQL database with four simple tables: Name: User - Columns: Name, Surname, Role, CreatedAt, UpdatedAt. Name: Role - Columns: Name. Name: UserRole - Columns: User_id, Role_id. Name: RoleUser - Columns: Role_id, User_id. Then I want to seed the database with some simple data. I am using this tutorial: It is fairly simple but with a significant issue: it goes out of the way to create a model with all of the fields that will be used in the database (creating additional tables, unnecessary columns, etc.), making it difficult to understand how to use the model as a starting point for the database. An additional difficulty is that it is fairly old, based on EF6, and I get an error "Unable to determine the principal end of the 'MySQL.Data.EntityFrameworkCore.MySqlFluentExtensions' relationship. Multiple added entities may have the same primary key.

EntityFrameworkCore.Infrastructure.Migrations.Automapping.MultipleAddedEntitiesMappingException" Does anyone know how to get started? A: You have to add the model to the database in the DataContext.OnModelCreating method. Like so (only changes in the table and column names):
protected override void OnModelCreating(ModelBuilder modelBuilder) { modelBuilder.Entity().HasKey(k => k.Name);
modelBuilder.Entity().HasKey(k => k.Name);
modelBuilder.Entity().HasKey(k => new { k.User_id, k.Role_id });
} MySQL protected override

Q: Form not in the same page in JS frame I am developing an elearning site that have an html page with a frame containing a javascript that create a new tab on the client browser and load a HTML Form inside the new tab. When I click on the button that open the new tab I get the error: Failed to execute 'document.getElementById' on 'Window': The element could not be found.
var newtab = window.open('', '_blank');
var form = document.getElementById("formEditarCargo");
var frm = document.getElementById("FrmEditarEvento");
var modalEdit = new Modaledit();
var element = document.getElementById("");
document.getElementById("ButtonAddRow").onclick = function () { form.value += modalEdit.text2.length; alert(form.value); modalEdit.show(); };
The form is in a frame that is in the same page (home/frm/metodo.aspx). Thanks. A: It looks like this is a problem with your javascript parsing which I do not know how to solve unless you provide information. If the element id is contained within a tag, you need to specify the correct context for this. For example: $("").show(); or document.getElementById("").show(); It can be tricky to find when trying to debug something that fails. If you can take a screen shot of your page it would be much more helpful. [Body mass index, morbidity and mortality in the population aged 65 and more].
