The game is a 1 to 4 player action-RPG, which takes place in the Kingdom of Pansâl'. The player controls a newly created race of humans called the Aplestians. They are a hybrid of humans and dragons, which include both their blonde and dark sides. You play as the hero, a human/dragon that leads the charge of a brave force with one goal: save the Kingdom of Pansâl' and stop the invasion of the dragons. Use magic to transform into a blue dragon and take to the skies. Enemies are reduced to your stomping style. During combat, the player runs away or pursues the enemy while healing himself at the same time. You must watch out for the combination attacks of the enemy, otherwise you are in for a nasty surprise! Each level of the game contains the maximum number of enemies. The fights are very dynamic and the enemies react with a dynamic combat system. Enemies are controlled with two attack statuses. The first status: ready and if the enemy attacks you, it will automatically attack. The second status: at full health and it will attack whenever you approach it. The first status is activated by the enemy. The second status is activated by the player. As the game progresses, you can increase the number of enemies you attack. Equip 15 enemies and the statuses will be extended for each attack. During combat, there are three phases: The Guard Phase, the Attack Phase and the Recovery Phase. The Guard Phase is where you fight a lot of enemies. The Attack Phase is for you and the enemies. Heals are performed at certain points. The Recovery Phase is for you. Magic spells are used to heal and execute attacks. It is also possible to use special attacks from the weapon or weapon specialties. It is wise to switch weapon or weapon specialties when you encounter a difficult situation. During the Guard Phase, you can burn enemies with your fire-balls if you have enough health. Use the arrows keys to move and the mouse to attack. Press the space bar to jump in order to reach high places and to go up the stairs. If you run out of health, you can dive into the ground to regenerate some health. The left mouse button toggles the following abilities and spells: Lungs: Use this ability to breathe. Fist: Damage. Thrown weapon: Throw c9d1549cdd

This is Doctor Miles on the expedition to reveal the mystery of these huge tunnels found around the planet surface. I think I've found the reason. Look at those small mechanical spiders over there. Looks like they are, em, trembling, while devastatingly digging into the ground to run away from. ("Ahhh!!"-someone's screaming from outside the camera) Oh, sh*t, this is bad, FK, AWWWAA, my ar....." -- Last transmit from the U-232 planet expedition team."Shut up you idiots. Back in the day I was a still a star explorer (loud laughter from around), I went on a scout mission to Colony C-080. Yeah, there used to be a colony before a gigantic explosion. Guess what I saw there? A robotic rat thing larger than Qomolangma was gnawing its fella (loud laughter again). It looked at me as if my ship was a fking mosquito. Soon after I came back I submitted a report and quit the star explorers. You never know what kind of horror is hiding out there, kids." -- A drunker in a bar on Primal Earth -- Former ace pilot of the star explorersCodename "DustDragon" - Confirmed Encounters : 0Codename "Octo" - Confirmed Encounters : 0Codename "MuTRax" - Confirmed Encounters : 0Gameplay Machine Crisis (????): How to Get Started

What's new:

After months of finally attending a Pathfinder Society (PFS) meeting, Eric confirmed that short classes such as this are part of the PFS routine. Eric has picked simple classes so that there is plenty of room for fun. This means that your players can build their characters even though they are short. When it comes to generating a character, there are four main options at your disposal: Buy an asset (backstory) to your character, the curio system that Eric has designed and developed, the character sheet, or the random character generation. Let's look at those options and see which are right for you. The Acquisition System Character Generation for the Pathfinder Society Paul No matter how many times I run a game, I fall into the same pitfalls, as new adventures add new challenges while the core group's experience level declines. Sure, any new player can learn new systems quickly, but how are we supposed to know what is going to be that game-breaking monster they've yet to see? How are we supposed to create a robust character that can learn new systems quickly while keeping the player immersed in the story? There is no other way than through the acquisition system. First, you need to figure out what you want the player characters to be. Be this a struggle to return magic from chaos, a mystery pulled from the minds of druid, be it a simple deep evil magic, or a simple fortune telling, whatever feels most interesting to you. Second, you need to create a system to funnel these ideas into a coherent player character. Luckily, PFS is a system that has a long history of this kind of material, we just need to take a point-based approach to play out the events. Again, a point-based system works well with PFS. You just need to have two questions to ask yourself: when is a character created? and how many points are they allotted? Be this one point or ten, the point of contention has never been the number of points. Using the character creation guidelines, we can determine the point per point value of our character. For example, a mighty rogue needs eighty-eight points, or twenty-seven talents for seven points/talent. How does this work in game? Easy. Whenever the party moves through a sequence of adventures, we award the players points according to the difficulty they meet. If the player meets an easy challenge, they have a bit of Lumina is a first person puzzle game where you use lasers to escape a pyramid! As an archaeologist in 1920, you find an enormous forgotten pyramid in the desert, the lost pyramid of Ka-Nefer. After setting camp nearby, you decide to start the exploration. It is too late when you realize you got trapped in the pyramid! The only escape are locked gates that open with colored light. You will have to use your skills to combine, split and reflect beams of lights using mirrors and prisms, while avoiding the ancient dangers that are buried deep in the pyramid. Will you manage to steal the hidden treasures and make it out alive without awakening the dark forces that were meant to remain forgotten?
