It is a little more laid back in terms of objectives, but a great deal more satisfying in that it's full of sly flourishes and a few innovative twists." 8.3 - GameZone "It's not often that a game comes along that is both inventive and frenetic, but Door Kickers is. This fusion of high-speed and high-stakes is best when you're feeling entirely carefree, and more often than not you will be." 9.2 - Game Informer "Door Kickers is a raucous fan-service title

Introducing the brand new gameplay mode, Killing Floor - The Chickenator Pack! A new mode for the fiendish Killing Floor, where a single player joins forces with the Chickenator to take down wave after wave of Horzine creatures spawned in the rift. In addition, the new "The Chickenator" cosmetic item will be available as a bonus skin! Set on a massive open world area, the Slaughterhouse area is a one of a kind environment designed to contain an enormous number of Horzine creatures. The main difference is that this area has no doors, so you must travel on foot from one of the three entrances. Killing Floor is designed for solo play only, and there are no dedicated NPC's to aid you in your quest. The Slaughterhouse area is massive, but you'll only be able to travel in the upper half of the map for the time being. In the future, we will update the map to include the lower half as well, and will update Killing Floor to be able to take on much larger hordes of Horzine creatures in the future. Rules of the Slaughterhouse area: There are no doors in the area, you must fight your way from one of the three entrances, designated as 1, 2 or 3. You will spawn with the Chickenator and your weapons. The Chickenator will be marked by a green "C" icon on your minimap, and he will also leave behind the familiar orange feathers that mark the area where he has been. In order to kill Horzine creatures, you must get into a position where you can attack the creature. Attacking a Horzine creature will spawn a Horzine AOE point which will effect the entire area for 20 seconds, providing cover for the Horzine creature and other enemies nearby. There are no civilian AI, and any civilian AI spotted will be destroyed. It is possible to use the civilian AOE's to fire and reload, but they can only be used when they are at maximum capacity. There is no way to restore the capacity of a civilian AOE. The above restrictions and terms of use apply to all areas of the Slaughterhouse Area as well as Killing Floor. Yes, if you're a collector and you purchase the game it will include a game card redeemable for two other game. I think you should ask your friendly neighbourhood H3DN2TH before you consider purchasing. There's a cat too.

What's new in Ball Fall:

Alien Monopoly is a 3D board game of transportation and building, inspired by classic Monopoly. The game's basic premise is to complete the greatest number of missions. The twenty-five unscheduled events that correspond to each space program category have special effects on gameplay, and completing a mission wins additional points. Asteroids, the Rat Race, and Wasteland are game-ending factors, in that no mission may begin with these events. An extended rulebook contains full game information, numerous alternate missions, and fifteen decks of cards. Development Originally released in 1997, Alien Monopoly was re-published in 1999. An enhanced version ("Extended Alien Monopoly") was released in 2003. The digital version of Alien Monopoly, in contrast with most other games in the genre, does not have a dedicated "coin" mechanic. Art and gameplay Alien Monopoly uses three types of objects: space vehicles (cars), space stations, and buildings (each of which is randomly assigned to one of the four color decks), with the stations each being worth points and building being worth money and supplies. Vehicles are able to move in any of the four directions over a path specified on a copy of the game play board, starting in the center of the board and moving out from there; a vehicle route is defined by where the vehicle lands during a time-limited stop event. Many cards effect either vehicles or buildings, or both. Space facilities Many cards involve moving through space (that is, the "Space" card type). Some move the vehicles, taking them to remote locations. Other cards move the vehicles to specific destinations; some specific tasks cannot be completed in the vehicle, and must take place on the building side of the board. The ten types of event card each consists of a Mission, Destination, Task, and possibly other cards; the Mission and Destination cards determine the speed and power of the vehicle on a path around the target building. The Task cards are either mechanical (preventing the vehicle from moving, for example), or last for the specified number of stops (at the checkpoints), for example. The End-of-Turn cards are a type of Stop card that can be used at any time to end the session. Three cards of another type, the "Building" type, are placed along the several paths around the board. Like the Terminus (plural "Terminuses") cards, these appear
