Not finding a question very easily is an unfortunate characteristic of the site. However it would be useful to know who the author of a question is. I think there might be some mechanism to do this, but I can't find it. Does it exist? A: The author is a number, hence why it's usually not put there. The author is not that important anyway, unless you need to find them out for some reason. (if you did, I'd recommend reading: Who is that?) [A new classification system of chronic uveitis and correlation of enophthalmitis cases with systemic diseases]. A new and more precise classification system of chronic uveitis has been developed to standardize its terminology, and to make uniform the categorization of disease and treatment of uveitis. To correlate chronic uveitis with systemic disease. A retrospective study was performed using medical records. The study included 253 patients (253 eyes) with chronic uveitis: 189 infectious, 52 non-infectious, and 2 of other origin. With this new classification of chronic uveitis, the most common systemic association was ankylosing spondylitis (23.4%), followed by systemic vasculitis (20.2%), psoriasis (19.4%), hypothyroidism (8.3%), and cystic fibrosis (4.7%). The chronic uveitis
