Other intriguing tidbits from the development page include a breakdown of the standards of the internal engine for online play (mentioned in the description excerpt above).

Caves are created according to the World Palette that you use, allowing for a variety of dungeons to be created on the fly.

Background music and music used in battles is also tied to the World Palette.

It also further offers a more expansive breakdown of background and enemies to be explored.

We can also add that the game is coming to other platforms, with for instance, the upcoming Steam version is coming to Windows after its release on PC.
