I am hosting a Windows 2008 Server, but I am not sure which web server software should I use for this. Is there a good software for this? I want to host it for the duration of the Webinar, and I will not be touching the video or audio files. A: I suggest using Windows Media Server and MediaElement.js to serve up the video. I've used this approach in the past, and it works flawlessly. It even lets you run the video files through FFMPEG or Transcoding without requiring an actual encoder. I think MediaElement.js has some good documentation if you're interested. A: A quick google result turned up qtdm.com as being a free option, and I've found it through getting started guides to be simple to set up and use. I have no idea if it offers all the functionality required, but it's worth a try.
