The Future of EU science funding, 27 years on from Horizon 27 years ago today the European Union and its Member States issued a landmark regulation for Scientific Research and Development (Reserch d'Informations et Développement) which created the European Union Framework Programmes (EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES – EC). The regulation defined the EU’s science policy and the manner in which this policy would be financed. These programmes acted as the precursor of the framework programme of Horizon2020. The Regulation (EC – ECEq)n.2201/94 (revised in 2002, 2010 and 2015) was a key step in the EC’s evolution from a research university cooperation programme to the much more ambitious, long-term Horizon2020. The European Parliament, the EC and the Member States continued to work together in the years that followed, leading to many significant reforms. Following a new financial perspective in 2013, the EU is now in a position to see Horizon 2020 through to completion. It is the European Commission’s aim to ensure that the EU secures funding that addresses major challenges, while at the same time recognising the existing and future potential of the Union’s research and innovation. It is of great importance that all aspects of Horizon 2020 are well funded and that its strategic objectives are implemented properly and efficiently. Ultimately, the Commission’s success depends on the quality of Horizon 2020’s results and its impact on the EU’s economy. In many ways, the Occ13bf012

I don't know, I found it a bit funny the team is actually counting on an F-22 Raptor to take out drugged Johnny Depp when this movie is in no way a military film. I think I prefer the original as an actioner, but not military at all which is fine with me. The sequel is funny enough, but with a slightly higher budget, I think it could have done much better than it did. In summary, the use of a combined treatment approach with CSA and MNX for up to two years in children with ECD is acceptable with a very good tolerance profile, and well tolerated by the patient. This treatment offers at least four potential advantages: (i) the efficiency of the surgery can be improved by improving the results of the CSA; (ii) MNX has a lower cost; (iii) the diode laser could have a direct regenerative effect on the epithelium; and (iv) it may reduce the length of follow-up. Further studies are needed to determine whether the combination of CsA and MNX, as a post-transplantation adjuvant therapy, will reduce the number of relapses in children.
