LightVR creates a unique immersive experience by using a web browser's built-in functionality, the most popular browser in the world - Google Chrome. With a browser window as its only interface, LightVR lets users access the immersive world of VR with open source tools and its "Light" content creation API. For those of you that may not know, a "content creation" API is just a set of features that let you do more cool stuff with a web browser. It basically connects all the web browsers out there to each other without the need for any external software. What's so special about LightVR is that it does not need any type of additional hardware to make it work. All you need is a Google Chrome(not Google Chrome Extensions) and a "Light" enabled Chrome extension and LightVR will be ready to go. It works both on Windows and Mac, hence we don't need to have two different machines to enjoy it. For those of you that like to dream about things, LightVR gives the ability to create as many custom web apps you like. If you're a screen-less user, LightVR allows you to keep on working while in VR. Some examples are YouTube, Skype, Photoshop, Google Hangouts, Reddit, Slack, Github, Twitter, 4th Wall Studios, Fixel Studios, and many more. All it takes is adding the link to the content creation API to the opened LightVR window. Another impressive thing about LightVR is its price. Currently, the web app is free to use. There are no additional fees to use it, which goes along way with all the amazing content creation tools that it has to offer. The developer's website states the following: "LightVR is free and open source software. It is distributed under the GNU General Public License and can be freely downloaded and distributed. There is no charge for its usage. You can use it in commercial as well as in non-commercial projects for free. LightVR uses the popular open-source WebVR API, so its source code is also available on GitHub." What are you waiting for? Do yourself a favor and check it out. The present invention relates generally to the field of social networking, and more specifically, to identifying users based on social events. Roll The Cat is a game about a cats named Roll (Yevgeny in Russian). Roll's days are bad. He is a cranky cat, or a crankcat. (A cat who is a cranky little guy) Because of a couple of life crises (like losing a wife), he now has to live alone. He only has one friend, a mouse named Mouse. And you will play the game through rolling the cats in to their beds. As you do, you'll gradually learn more about Roll, his friend Mouse, and the rest of the cat population. It's up to you to get them all to bed, while you never interrupt them (at least not too much). Each level has its own theme, which you can change at any time (and then the level will be reset to the last saved state). You can have fun creating different themes for each cat's bed, by choosing colors and text for each level. The game has various levels of difficulty. Some levels are very easy, you will get it right on your first try, while other levels can be very challenging. The game has multiple endings, so you'll get to see what happens if you play until the end on every level. It's up to you to get the right amount of catnip, and then you'll be able to get the sleeping cats to sleep! Roll The Cat was first available for computers through virtual web store Desura. Thanks to the PCGamer contest, we can now also offer you Roll The Cat on Steam! I really love this game. It's simple to learn, and it's not hard to play, but at the same time there are dozens of level to progress through and it can be very challenging at times. The great thing is that the controls are very easy to use, just look around the screen to play the game, and then just roll the cats into their beds. Roll The Cat's graphics are very cute and the animations are awesome. Each cat has their own little personality, so you'll get to know them better while playing. The best thing is that there are five different cats, each one with a different theme, and you can change between them, so you can get to know each of them. Another great thing about the game is the different endings that can be achieved by playing it till the end on every level. Have fun playing Roll The Cat and thanks to the PCGamer contest solves your brain teaser. Each round starts with a blank full screen pin board with Pin Puzzles; solve an on screen puzzle and you'll unlock more puzzles. After completing 20 puzzles you'll unlock the next 20. You can also access the 20 best Pin Puzzles to Speed up your game. Heart-Throat+: Slide solves a puzzle by heart: 1) sliding the cat across all the matching hearts; 2) sliding the hearts across the cat; 3) sliding the cat and hearts together. The Memory Card: View photos from you and your cat's memory card on the game board. Shapes of the memory card can also be added to the board to create even more puzzles! Puzzle of the Day: This "fun and fast social game" with great graphics features a cutesy cat who will be your constant companion. Each new day that you play, a new puzzle will arrive. A Daily Puzzle starts with a photos or a drawing of the cat, and you're intended to slide your finger from the "heart" or the "mouth" across the word or drawing. Collect as many "bells" as possible in order to clear a stage. When you reach the next stage the puzzle will be the same, but with the added twist of grey and black background (words and drawings will be distorted). However, the puzzles are playable (and unlockable) even when you reach the "Reached Next Level" screen. You can set rules for when the puzzle will return (e.g. Not Set, one day, seven days, twenty days, etc.) and it also keeps track of how many "bells" you've collected. There's no end to the puzzles for fans of cat pictures. The puzzles increase in difficulty, and they have bells to collect to clear all the puzzles. The cat is always visible on the puzzle board with a cute and silly expression. The "Memories and Confetti" soundboard is also a part of the fun (and unlocks more puzzles)! Wonder How That Happened: Description Watch YouTube videos or select from a list. Your cat turns into a superhero to help. First watch a video in Very Slow-Mo to prepare your cat to move up to the speed of the next video. Then watch the video at it's highest speed to see the cat respond to the camera! The more you watch cat videos, the more your cat
