The Super Bowl is the biggest single sporting event on the calendar, whether you like football, hockey or basketball. And it's likely the biggest economic investment we could ever make on behalf of our local economy. The event may not be as big as the NCAA men's basketball championship in Philadelphia or the NBA or NHL Finals in other cities. But whoever sells more tickets, buys more food, buys more alcohol and promotes the festival most will score big in their local area. To put it another way, whoever secures the best big-game ticket sales at the Super Bowl can make the city look good because the event has so much marketing clout.Q: Как взять файл на сервере и передать его пользова
