A fuel tank absorbs fuel vapors from a vehicle's fuel system during vehicle operation, and stores the absorbed fuel vapors in order to prevent the fuel vapors from entering the atmosphere and causing adverse environmental impacts. In some cases, a venting system may be provided that vents the fuel vapors to the atmosphere during fueling operations. In some cases, the fuel tank may include one or more valves to control the venting of the fuel vapors during vehicle operation. However, the valves generally add to the cost of the fuel tank, which is contrary to one of the aims of a low cost vehicle system. Electoral district of Central Sydney Central Sydney was an electoral district of the Legislative Assembly in the Australian state of New South Wales, named after the Sydney CBD. It was first contested in the 1880 election, replacing Kelly, and has since been renamed to Sydney central. History On 22 December 1894, the Electoral district of Kelly was abolished, and absorbed by the Electoral district of Sydney. Sydney Central was then created, combining the city seat of Sydney with a number of seats on the fringe, including many with a significant rural-based population. It was abolished ahead of the 1904 elections, and replaced by the Electoral district of Sydney. Members for Central Sydney Election results Elections in the 2010s 2019
