'A Ready Destiny' – Prologue As the sun rose beyond the eastern horizon, it left a weak light on the Land Between. The dew still lay upon the grass. Such a morning is coming for the first time in a long time. The Old Castle. Long, long ago, the Lands Between – an unruly land with no clear border between the Dark Forest and the Light Lake, where the Great Sword that strikes fear into all around hung. The light from the sky was weak, but it illuminated the remains of a fortress. There were two towers that survived, one with a rotted roof and the other that seemed to have a flame of ancient black light around it. The ruins served as a hiding spot for bandits and criminals, and it was said that the sword that once hung there drove them mad with fear. A small group of bandits and criminals in a silver carriage passed through the ruined castle. They were discussing about the treasure that lay in the northwest field of the castle. "Are you sure it's worth it?" "And if this fight does not go well, then we are going to give them all of the treasure. It's better to fight out of necessity than to be greedy." "......How much is it?" "It is at least 10,000 gold." "I'm not very interested in this." "This is what we're going to do. We'll prepare for battle, and leave the treasure for now." "......Then, is there something else that you want that you do not dare to say?" "Then, we'll just split the loot."
