NEW DELHI: The Union Cabinet has approved creation of a new central ministry to bring together the civil aviation and railways ministries. The Cabinet took up this decision after two central ministers -- Railway Minister Suresh Prabhu and Civil Aviation Minister Ashok Gajapathi Raju -- requested that the two ministries be brought together, effectively ending the turf battles which have taken place over the last few months. The Cabinet also took a slew of decisions on various other matters, including the appointment of Manohar Joshi as the new HRD Minister, the appointment of Justice P P Rao as Chairman of the Telecom Regulatory Authority of India, the decision to increase the quantum of pension for senior citizens to Rs 3,000 and keep inflation at 8.2 per cent for a period of two years, according to sources. The full Cabinet is scheduled to meet on Thursday. Suppression of plasminogen activator activity by an activated protein C inhibitor, C1-esterase inhibitor. A factor Xa-dependent factor V activating protease has been described in several species, including man. This protease can be inhibited by two protein C-like serine protease inhibitors, C1-esterase inhibitor (C1-Inh) and purified high molecular weight (Mr approximately 300,000) plasma inhibitor of this enzyme. C1-Inh is the major inhibitor of the extracellular protease of the human monocytic cell line U-937. The high molecular weight protease in these cells is activated during phag

For example: String test="TEST"; System.out.println("String : "+test); System.out.println("Printing test : "+test); test.toString(); System.out.println("Printing test : "+test); System.out.println(test); System.out.println("Printing test : "+test); Why is this happening? Thanks. A: You're using a badly-written IDE. IDEs don't use the String type - they use something more lightweight like StringBuilder.

This means that test.toString() is calling the toString() method of your StringBuilder. Since StringBuilder is mutable, this means that you're modifying the String returned by toString(). This is why you get different behavior when you use print or println; the statements are using different versions of the String returned by toString(). Q: How to separate three different types of companies in a table? I have a model called CustomerCompany in which I want to separate 3 different types of companies. firstName : string lastName : string companyName : string companyType : string I need to make three different tables for these (Customer, CustomerCompany, Company). How can I generate 3 different tables where I'll have the same information in each one (name, surname, phone, last check, first company, last company, first company, last company,...) but in 3 different tables? A: Why don't you do like this: Customer > name : string Customer > surname : string Customer > phone : string CustomerCompany > customerName : string CustomerCompany > customerSurname : string CustomerCompany > phoneCompany : string Company > customerName : string Company > customerSurname : string Company > phoneCompany : string Hope it helps you. Cost-effectiveness of in-home therapy for individuals with myasthenia gravis and dysarthria: a systematic review.
