Experience the life and horrors of war in Tannenberg as you lead your regiment from behind the lines into the killing fields of World War I. Face a desperate struggle for survival as you race to beat the clock to halt a German onslaught on the beleaguered Russians. Choose from a host of authentic weapons such as the old-fashioned bolt action rifle, the pump action Schmeisser submachine gun and the new generation P-10 light machine gun. Battle for control over key positions across a huge battlefield littered with the ruined bodies of previous battles. Or, commandeer the quick-firing Renault 'Pup' tank which you can deploy to battle for cover. As you play Tannenberg: War for Tsar, you will take the part of a Russian Grenadier from Rennau's 97th Red Army Regiment. Under your command, your regiment fights for survival against a German onslaught to inflict a crippling defeat on the German forces. At war with Germany since 1914, the Russians have suffered a disastrous defeat at Tannenberg in East Prussia - the First Battle of Tannenberg. The Germans are poised to march again against their foes - the Russian's are hard pressed to hold them back. Players can choose to play the battles of Tannenberg as the Germans or Russians - or even both sides - as they attempt to halt this latest wave of destruction. Tannenberg For Windows (Latest)

You get to send a squad into combat on either side of the front lines. You get to control infantry, armour, vehicles and support units. You get to track your own progress on the field of battle. You get to capture enemy maps, scores and flags. You get to earn medals and rank for your own performance in the conflict. And you get to support other players on the field of battle via your squad's radio chatter, your own player icons and the choice of multiple team music for the ground, air and the intel side of the conflict. DICE (We are looking at you, EA!) is also working on a single-player campaign based on this conflict. We are also going to get a chance to play Tannenberg: "We are not ready to show anything, but, we want to share with you something that will show you how authentic the game will be compared to other games. What we want to share is the score of the Tannenberg gameshow and what we have here are the first two rounds, with all 16 teams. Each round has eight teams. Eight teams against eight teams, the goal is simple - fight on the battlefield, outlast your opponents, collect your blue balls and get your chance for the red balls. You have four minutes to play the game and we have a crew that will not give you any break or anything. It will not be like the show where you do that, so please, just give it a try, see how it goes and then we'll have some technical difficulties and you can call it a day or we'll have the crew that comes to help you." I'm pretty sure that the answer is that nobody's been sure what to do about this. Every alternative -- from what I've heard, around a million or two -- was really bad, and this is the best solution that anybody has thought of. For what it's worth, EA's position is that things should just sort of progress naturally with an eventual lookalike -- except you never want that, because that's terrible, because it's going to be like "BWA HA HA! YOU COULD HAVE JUST WATCHED A REALLY GOOD MOVIE!". It's not the movie business -- it's video games, and they're different, and you've got to accept that. It'll never get better, it'll never be as good as a great movie, and that's just a fact. That's a fact that, if you don't believe,

What's new:

Line in the First World War. You'll find museums, parks, and more along the river. Turn left when you reach the train station and walk one block south. Naumburg: Cross the river and take the first left onto Petersplatte 1, following `_Stadtstrasse_` signs. You're walking through a quiet residential district and on to the pedestrian zone, so expect strolls. After a couple of blocks, turn left and walk along the river. A block after the river, look for the big wooden gate (marked `_Stockhorst_`) on your right. Step through—you're in Stockhorst Park (a.k.a. Zillertal Park). Turn right after passing the section of lawn with a playground and followed by a peaceful old train station with a view of the Danube River and Vienna. Across the busy Bäckerstrasse is the café Gasthaus Stubner ( open daily, closed late Nov-March, 2 blocks east of Stockhorst Park at Bäckerstrasse 3, tel. 0900-891-5331, www.stubner.at). A couple of blocks from here is the Kaiser-Franz-Josefs-Hospital, a big, blocky building (designed as a hospital in Victorian times and completed in 1853) with an especially delightful Italianate entrance building. St. Stephen's Cathedral: This highly touristed 19th-century Neo-Gothic building is worth a visit to see both its interior and vista (daily 7:00-19:00, sights closed 12:00-14:00 and when religious services are held, generally Wed-Fri 13:00-14:00, Sat-Sun 10:00-19:00, U-1,200 kr, www.ststephensvienna.at). Buses #C and #90 (stop near the Kaiser-Franz-Josefs-Hospital's backside, then walk back uphill, see map on here) drop you at the cathedral's churchyard. From here, you can use the DIY ticket I described above to hop on the Schönbrunn funicular (line C) to Schönbrunn Palace (€6.60 two-zone lift ticket, includes tolls, take line C1 or C2 to Karlsplatz and get off). The Green Bus
