I have been reading through my undergraduate dissertation, and I'm currently wondering whether I should leave it as-is, or should I make several changes and make it really good. It's a philosophical, and could be a good thesis when I graduate. The question is, when you have to write an average page size, maybe around 5-10 handwritten pages, would it be better to leave as-is? I'm just worried that I will do something much better after, and that it won't be as good, because I'm only "happy" writing "awful" stuff. It's not bad as it is (but I will improve it), but I just think it might be in my best interest to improve it so I
