They may not be the brightest of brightest but at least the world will be worth living in. Isn't that right, Trump? The Dow Jones Industrial Average and the S&P 500 sank back under 2,900 after an awful, horrible, no-good day's trading for Wall Street. But at least the world was still a fair place. So what did Donald Trump have to say for himself after the markets crashed today? His answer was to blame falling energy prices, which he accused 'Sob!' of not being his fault. And no one was blaming him, he said: Eagle-eyed investors were also pleased to note that yesterday's tumble was the biggest since October 2008, when the world was in a dire financial state. Only now, with unemployment at a 16-year high and his budget proposals being roundly mocked, the President was accusing Democrats of playing politics with the national debt. Every single Democrat in Washington playing politics with your Second Amendment, playing politics with your military, playing politics with Israel, playing politics with the border. And where have these Democrats been? They've been working and playing all year on bringing jobs back to the country, on getting the whole thing back on track. Which is why, he claimed, nobody had blamed him for their financial woes. It's also why they've been strong on the border and on healthcare, which, he added, was another thing the Democrats have been playing politics with, but

Qikura is a first person puzzle platformer that was built from the ground up to give players a relaxing and nostalgic experience. You explore the world of Qikura with your brave soul, interact with its characters and solve its puzzles, together. Explore the world and fight evil with your unique one man army, Qikura. The ending you wish will come as a surprise! A story-driven experience that will leave you with a smile on your face! Inspired by stories, mythology and other fictional worlds, Qikura is the ultimate escape game. Features: - Explore a beautiful hand-drawn world of space and magic! - The story is about you - your journey, and solving the puzzles. - Take on the role of Qikura, a young and honest soul, and fight evil in this ultimate adventure. - Your reflection and your choices will affect the world of Qikura and the story you will experience. Qikura is currently in an Alpha phase, meaning that some features are incomplete, bugs are there and graphics are ugly. Unlock content as you go! Since the beginning of our journey, we have been made aware of a disturbing fact: the majority of people who played the game at our previous contest found the ending that was provided to be a bit unsatisfactory. Therefore, we have added secret collectibles that will unlock for you, as you progress through the game. These collectables will not be rewarded to you at the end of the game. Qikura's world is unforgiving. Due to the harsh reality of the universe that Qikura has been teleported to, there are no actual real-world objects. Although this method might provide a more lighthearted experience, we could not bring ourselves to make the choices that the real world imposes upon us. We also thought that allowing the player to interact with the world in a more physical way would be counter-intuitive to a puzzle game. No-one expects the end to be easy. We also believe that an easier game would in no way be an enjoyable experience. All of our puzzles and game design are built on the premise that the player will solve the puzzles by making choices, which are essentially correct because they are the choices that you made. Finding the truth of the world is another goal. We, as creators, understand that there are already many similar
