The Sphinx Spy's website has all the Sphinx transcripts,.Q: PHP MySQL Query with WHERE (30 to 100) I'm trying to make a dynamic search form for my website. I have a database where i keep most of my data. The problem is that i need to retrieve all the information with WHERE clause. The problem is that each time the query retrieves too much data, i don't want so many duplicates in the result. for example if my web server is getting 20 items in the result, i would like to receive something like 30-40 records in the result so that there's an order. I really need someone to help me to solve this problem. Thanks! A: Change the select query (in php) to only select certain fields (like name and id) that you don't want in the query.

Then you can change your php code so that you just call the query and pass in only the two fields you want. A: The easiest way is to Create a ids table create a ids table with col. id(INT) AUTO_INCREMENT, col. name(VARCHAR), col. parent(int) Query for all parents of any ID with 0 as parent(don't return) (The order of parents is important in this table because of the parent field) By doing so, You'll get one row for each ID
