Well, you should probably know that. The all-you-can-drink drink is not on the menu of any of the coffee shops here in Manila. But it is available in the cafeteria at the State of Mindor Hotel, where one can fully gorge oneself for 10 baht. Yes, that's 10 baht for a large coffee. That's a lot. This is an homage to the U.S. television talk show host and comedian, Jeremy "Soda Jerk

EPSON DRIVERS: INCLUDE -.Q: Ajax with JQuery generate an always the same list What i try to do is to fetch the nth element of an array with ajax and display it. But it seems like it always displays the first element in this array. the array looks like this: var array = new Array("1", "2", "3", "4"); And the function looks like this: function fn(){ var q = array.length; $.ajax({ type:"POST", url:"get.php", data:{"+ q +"}, success:function(data){ $("#result").html(data); } }); } I would like it to be fetch the second and the fourth element in the array. A: With your code the number q will be always equals to the array length since you're adding the array length to it. Try to change the way you send q: data:{"+ q +"}, to data:{"+ q +", array), Then q will take the length of the array instead of it's value, plus it will make the ajax call synchronous. the first day of our service ministry in India. We were up quite late the night before, talking about all the joys and challenges of such a trip. We had lots of fun recounting memories of our life in Pangsha and then we actually said our prayers and blessed the bright white linen of the cloth and then God answered our prayers 6d1f23a050
