Breast milk Feeding your baby colostrum during the first days of life is very important for the baby's health. Why? It contains protective antibodies and it is rich in bacteria that are important in the baby's immune system development. Breast milk is the best nutrition for a baby because it offers all the important nutrients like proteins, fats, sugars, vitamins, and minerals. How much of it is right? Optimal: 4-8 ounces of milk per feed. One cup will provide about 500 calories (excluding the milk fat). Sufficient: 8-12 ounces. How much of colostrum a mother can feed in the first few days? A baby needs at least eight ounces of colostrum per day between birth and day four. How can you tell if your baby is getting enough? You can monitor your baby's weight
