receptor subtypes in bovine adrenal glomerulosa cells.

The adenylate cyclase activity in bovine adrenal glomerulosa cells is increased by the beta 2-adrenoceptor agonist, salbutamol, and the alpha 2-adrenoceptor agonist, clonidine. Salbutamol acts as a partial agonist with respect to the adenylate cyclase response whereas clonidine acts as an antagonist. These results are consistent with the presence of two different receptor subtypes in bovine adrenal glomerulosa cells: one beta 2-adrenoceptor and one alpha 2-adrenoceptor. Back from the grave: live gels amid a mass of DNA. Gene and genome sequencing projects are producing large quantities of DNA sequence data. A major challenge for post-genomic sequencing is to identify the DNA sequences that are biologically meaningful, or have specific functions. The major difficulty in identifying biologically relevant DNA sequences lies in the large size of the sequence data. We have developed a method for visualization of the DNA, allowing the gels to be scanned and the data matrix to be presented in a way that allows the user to discern patterns in it. The user needs only to look for repeating DNA patterns, or regions of high sequence similarity. There's a long list of things that happen during a long winter: iced over mailboxes, should be made.

Even with the year-round frozen ground, the office remains open to record an observation. How does the 6d1f23a050
