Noesis Plugin 1 3 Ozip iNWPiC The rage and dragon have always been one of the most important parts of this core. The rage is the essence of the magical attacks and the dragon is the source of the flame attacks. So in our combat system we wanted to develop two different actions - the rage and the flame thrower. So in a way, the rage was just added to the core like any other normal action. The thing was that we wanted to make one action that was both random and doable. So instead of using the "normal" Rage action, we created an ability called the Rage Thrower. This ability is a very special action because it is a rare ability that only one person in the game can learn at a given time. It is a random attack that does only 1 damage when hit and is guaranteed to hit. The player who can learn the Thrower is essentially releasing some rage. Not only that, but it has a time period that the player can use the ability. The time period is the rage period. However, the rage period is only active in his character level 22 or higher. So to make this idea work we looked at the idea of a player defining his own random number. It was the big idea, so we started prototyping this idea. Although we tried different ideas, the best one was to take the 5 normal abilities and make them work through a system where each ability would have a number, and you would pick a random number. So first of all you would pick a number, and then you would pick the ability that had a number equal to that number. After trying that, we decided that we should not necessarily have all abilities have a number. So we decided that sometimes we would have abilities with no number or only abilities with a number would be picked. Then after all those things were done and tested, we had the ability where the only way to choose a number for the player is to shoot a number of arrows. We had that tested for a while and it seemed like it was not very practical. So we made the player load a number from a text file or something similar. Then we made the Rage Thrower work like this. The moment the thrower is unlocked, the number is brought in and the player gets to pick a number (much like for a normal ability). The difference is that the player gets to pick exactly how many arrows he wants to shoot. So the player can decide on a number of arrows that he wants to shoot. In order to know how many arrows the player needs to shoot, the number of arrows the player chooses to shoot is always added to the current rage period. If the player decides to shoot one, then the player is adding one to the rage period. 5ec8ef588b
