When it comes to print drivers, quality matters - but so does time. HP ePrint helps make your day-to-day activities easier by providing free, convenient services for supported HP printers. Now, you can configure these services, such as a shared printer, online status, and wireless printing, to provide an optimal user experience for your workgroup. For example, you can use ePrint to print files stored in OneDrive, or share photos stored in Google Photos via Google Cloud Print. Don't worry about the time required to download or install printer drivers. ePrint uses over-the-air software updates, so you can always use the latest drivers for your printer without waiting for shipping or downloading. The 160 x 150 dpi VGA-Compliant Display is easy to use, with a popular, multi-touch screen that can display text and graphics and also accept mouse clicks to activate applications. A "touch and print" option enables you to touch the screen with your finger or print documents directly from an iPhone or Android smartphone. A signature function lets you "sign" documents directly on the touch screen. Print what you need, just like on a computer, right from your hand! Even if your own computer is temporarily down or off line, the printer can be made operational from your phone. HP OfficeJet All-in-One can turn up to 100 pages a minute, print and copy the fastest time in its class and is capable of accepting up to 30% more toner per print cycle than other multifunction devices in its class. The HP OfficeJet All-in-One is more reliable than any other printer on the market. With 4 modes (home, office, photo, and fax), you can print, copy, scan, and fax from a single device. The HP OfficeJet All-in-One is built with a reliable HP PowerWave Plus 2 laser technology to print a 40% faster printing speed and reduce the wear on the consumables, like paper and ink cartridges. Using the OJ All-in-One with HP ePrint in an OfficeJet home or home/small office network allows print costs to be shared across up to 20 users, which gives you the ability to save money on ink, paper, and supplies. HP also offers a comprehensive warranty program, which covers everything from parts and labor to shipping and a 30-day money-back guarantee. 5ec8ef588b
