The three EdX languages are currently only available for the World Books Early World of Learning suite. Students can sign up for any of the three courses for free: Comprehending World Books Early World of Learning: Semester Modules , Fluent World Books Early World of Learning: Semester Modules , and World Books Early World of Learning: Play and Learn . All three courses are designed for the elementary school students who live in the World Books global learning ecosystem, and are designed for Common Core standards. The course materials use World Books Early World of Learning as the foundation for a language learning curriculum for the first decade of the 21st century. Students are taught how to read, write, listen, and speak three of the world languages of today (English, French, Spanish) and acquired three languages from around the world such as Mandarin Chinese, Arabic, and Hindi. For the students who will choose to continue the studying of a second language, they can also do so at their own pace and at the accelerated pace for which World Books Early World of Learning was designed. World Books is a company founded by EdX and MIT that describes itself as the world's largest non-profit publisher of textbooks, e-textbooks, audiobooks, and digital content. WBEOL is an earlier version of World Books (which World Books refers to as WBE) that allows teachers to choose from a suite of content, while students can choose to study only one or more languages. Early World of Learning , a Joomla-based subscription site, was originally funded through a grant for technology-enabled tutoring from Microsoft and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. World Books claims that this subscription model provides significant savings over the cost of yearly subscriptions to content.
