now connect the serial port to the debuggee machine and power on the debuggee, you will see in the 'debug console' that the com1 port will be available. now we need to enter the information needed to set up the debugging session. youll need to specify the following settings start menu - > hkey_local_machine\system\currentcontrolset\services\lsass - 'parameters' - 'startup parameters'. edit the 'svcstartparams' - 'serialport' - 'value' value to match the name of the output socket you created, in this case com1. if you are creating a new debuggee machine, specify the host type as 'standard' and the host operating system as 'windows server 2008 r2'. next specify the port for the remote desktop connection as 'vmwarevnc' (the default port) and 'password' to use, and click next. once activated, the serial server will appear in the new host settings. in the settings you can specify the com port your device is connected to. when configured correctly, the serial port will be visible in the virtual machine as if it was connected to a virtual com port. now is the time to look at vmware workstation 10.x serial keys. these are the keys we can use to unlock the full version of workstation. these keys work for the workstation and player versions only. you can use them to unlock the full version of workstation pro. we have collected over 50 serial key. these are the keys we found on the official pages of vmware. vmware workstation serial keys can be used to unlock the full version of the software. the best way to use a vmware serial key is to buy a license. using serial keys on this website is the fastest way to get a license. vmware has a range of serial keys to select from to unlock the software. the codes are valid for one user only.
