Is there any way I can do this? A: You can use the.find() method to get all descendants of a given element matching a certain selector, like this: $("div.textDiv p.text3").attr('src'); Note that your div.textDiv is not a proper element, but a div containing a p tag. If you have a div containing a set of divs, you could use.find() like this: $("div.outer div.inner").find("p.text3").attr('src'); A: Use.children() var src = $('.textDiv').children('.text3').attr('src'); A: Use $("p.text3").attr("src"); or $("div.textDiv p.text3").attr("src"); 1928 College Football All-America Team The 1928 College Football All-America team is composed of college football players who were selected as All-Americans for the 1928 college football season. The only two players unanimously recognized by the NCAA as "consensus" All-Americans are: Sammy Baugh, who was also selected by the National Football

I am implementing the RxSwift library in my code. This library offers a simple and convenient solution to use the latest changes in data. For example, we have an Observable that emits data: Observable.just(1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,9,10) We can subscribe to the observable and on each data emission: Observable.just(1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,9,10) .filter { 2edc1e01e8

Fast forwarding: the first thing you will notice is the huge difference between this browser and the last one. Compared to its predecessor, the new Brave browser is a lot faster, easier to use, and does not have any bugs (seriously). The Chrome team kept many of the Google features, such as autofill, autocomplete, and the omnibox (which we will explain in detail in this review). The new Brave browser contains speed in mind and is a lot better than the version it replaces. This is a big move for the company as it means that its users will be able to enjoy the full experience without any issues. Key features: Lightning-fast speed: Compared to the last version of Brave, this one is not only much faster, but it also loads pages much faster. It goes without saying that browsing the web with such a browser is a pleasure. Surf history: This one of the most interesting features of Brave is its surf history. The new browser learns from each request you make and allows you to quickly open websites and search queries you visited or searched in the past, thanks to the internet archive. Automatic cookie and privacy settings: There is no need to worry about your privacy or what websites can access, as Brave has its own sandbox to ensure it doesn't access any of your personal information. It does that by default, but you can also configure specific websites to always or never access your browser cookies. Downloading extensions: It's also possible to download extensions you use for a more custom experience on the internet. What we like: With a browser like Brave, you never have to worry about cookie settings or browsing history again. It's easy to access, quick and it provides you with a great experience. Brave Browser is a very fast browser (for some). It does not utilize a lot of memory and is fairly lightweight, and it's really fast. One of the main reasons for its great performance is that it doesn't store data on your device and that it allows you to browse the internet privately (no data or cookies are sent to websites when you use it). Key features: Privacy-focused browser: This is the number one feature that makes Brave stand out from the rest. The browser allows you to browse privately (you can't see what other people do in their browsing history or use similar searches to yours) and all websites and services are encrypted. Also, it won't record or
