I was able to get rid of the error message by adding [windows] ignore_auto_props = true to the SVN configuration for the repository at However, now whenever I try to switch branches I get the following error: SVN::E1600, An attempt to check out automatically switching branch 'feature/a to /' has failed. Comparison of solid and liquid water using new broadband dielectric spectroscopy. Quantitative measurements of the dielectric properties of water are of wide interest to a variety of areas, from biology to biomedicine. Although dielectric measurements are the most direct way of studying the molecular dynamics of water, few studies exist that have compared the dielectric properties of water in the liquid and solid states. Recently, a new broadband dielectric spectroscopy (BDS) technique has been developed to study the dynamic properties of biological molecules and biomaterials at frequencies below 500 GHz. In this study, we used BDS to compare the behavior of solid and liquid water, specifically, the temperature-induced phase transition of ice Ih and the melting point of water. Comparison of the observed dielectric properties with a dielectric model suggests that the water molecules in the liquid and solid phases have comparable polarizability and water-water interaction strengths. The results show that the average polarizability values of the water molecules are similar in both phases. However, the extent of their structural rearrangement is different. The average water-water interaction strengths are much weaker in the solid than in the liquid phase. At 0.2 K, the water molecules in the solid phases are clustered due to strong hydrogen bonds. The results of this study demonstrate that, at frequencies below 500 GHz, dielectric measurements in the liquid and solid states are comparable and offer a new and complementary dimension in the measurement of the dielectric properties of water. OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) -- A birthday party for 7-year-old Phaedra Ellis-West left her parents heartbroken, relatives said, and the Oakland-based father is facing murder charges. District Attorney Nancy O'Malley said Thursday that the parents of the San Francisco Bay Area girl
