That is why it’s a viable option for anyone who needs a more secure approach to securing their data, but it’s not for everyone. For example, there are no editing functions available, so just writing a note won’t suffice. Productivity Pioneer is a simple and useful program that focuses on two main aspects: the ability to use the Internet from a particular website and the ability to log off. Pioneer is a powerful tool that can be used for many things, but the main usage involves searching through internet to get information about something or other, just to click on the link that comes up as a result of the search and open a site. In other words, you don’t need to be connected to the internet to use this program. You can choose to sign up for a free Pioneer account to get all the features for the free version, but it will then track all of your activity, so it’s not a completely anonymous experience. On the

I need to know where to find a VB.Net syntax help file. The one I need is called VB.Net 1.1 Code Complete by Mark C. Humphrey. This is the best book I have ever read on .NET and there is a very detailed help file which explains everything. I cannot find this anywhere. I need a VB.NET syntax help file. Q: Install a specific version of Selenium I'm wondering if there is a way to install a specific version of selenium on Ubuntu 12.04. I installed the PPA that gives access to the unstable PPA: `sudo add-apt-repository ppa:webupd8team/selenium` `sudo apt-get update` But I'm finding that whenever I try to install selenium, it defaults to the version that is in the ubuntu repositories. For example, when I try to install version 2.43.0: `sudo apt-get install selenium` I get this error: Reading package lists... Done Building dependency tree Reading state information... Done selenium is already the newest version. 0 upgraded, 0 newly installed, 0 to remove and 0 not upgraded. I also tried adding the proposed PPA `sudo add-apt-repository ppa:webupd8team/proposed` But that also didn't seem to work. I even tried a specific version of selenium (2.43.0) and that failed to install. When I search for this version of selenium in the Ubuntu Software Center, I only find versions that are either in the ubuntu repositories or unstable. So it's not really clear how to install a specific version of selenium. Any ideas?

A: The packages from the official PPA are being synced from Debian to Ubuntu by Launchpad, but the process does not include a version update. Therefore, you can upgrade the packages using the PPAs mentioned in How to add PPA repository? I use Ubuntu 12.04 LTS, so the command to upgrade is: `sudo apt-get install -t quantal-updates selenium` You can verify that the package is up to date using the package manager: `$ apt-cache policy selenium`

selenium: Installed:
2.43.0+dfsg-2ubuntu1~2ppa1~webupd8~precise Candidate:
2.43.0+dfsg-2ubuntu1~2ppa1
```
